About

The New Hampshire Association of Family & Consumer Sciences is delighted to honor Emily Barrett from Gilbert H. Hood Middle School with the NH Family & Consumer Sciences Teacher of the Year Award. In the classroom, Emily's creative teaching style captivates and motivates her students. Her willingness to collaborate with colleagues and her continuous pursuit of knowledge enrich her teaching, making her classes dynamic and fun. Her approach not only meets educational standards but also inspires students to achieve their best. She has also distinguished herself as a leader within NHAFCs. She is instrumental in managing the organization's finances and maintaining its digital platforms, proving her versatility and commitment to advancing the profession. Emily's passion for helping students succeed and her engaging teaching methods make her the perfect choice for this award.
