About

Corey Laird of Milford High School & Applied Technology Center is the recipient of the New Hampshire Business Education Association (NHBEA) Achievement Award. His career in business education, spanning nearly two decades, is marked by integration of real-world business experiences into the classroom. As a Southern New Hampshire University dual enrollment instructor, Corey teaches accounting with a depth of knowledge that prepares students not just academically but for real-life financial challenges. His role as the advisor for the Future Business Leaders of America further underscores his commitment to nurturing the next generation of business innovators. A veteran of the United States Air Force, Corey brings discipline, dedication, and leadership to his teaching—qualities that resonate deeply with his students and colleagues alike. Corey is the essence of a business educator and deserves recognition as a long-standing member of the NHBEA. Corey's students thrive in his business classes and are inspired to continue as finance majors in college.
